WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE—MAIN BUILDING.

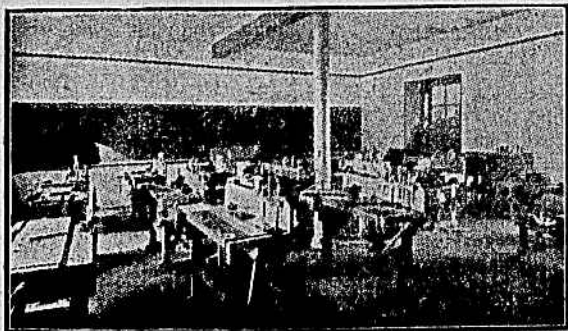

WILLIAM AND MARY COLLEGE is the oldest College in Virginia, and with the exception of Harvard University the oldest in the United States. It has exerted more influence on the history of the Union than even Harvard. Under its present organization it has more students, better buildings, and finer equipment than ever before in its history. At the last session of the Legislature the whole plant was transferred to the State, and it is now controlled like the University of Virginia by a Board wholly appointed by the Governor. The College has courses leading to the Teachers' Diploma, Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts. It has recently added a well equipped Department of Manual Art and Training. It has a handsome Science Hall, and its equipment in Botany, Zoology, Physics and Chemistry is excellent. The College is provided with pure artesian well water, and is lighted with electricity. The fees and rates of board are very reasonable. Next session will be particularly educative because of the Jamestown celebration. The College is distant only eight miles from Jamestown. The 213th session begins September 20, 1906.
